

ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus are provided for resolving an unknown address request in a computer system. The name is received at the first server with a request for an address
5 corresponding to that name. The name is compared with a database of names to detect any matching name in the database. If no matching name is detected a referral response is sent in answer to the request.